SCORES BURNED TO DEATH IN A THEATER FIRE

EXPLOSION OF TANK FOR MOVING PICTURE OUTFIT CAUSES A PANIC.

OIL LAMPS ARE OVERTURNED

Primitive Footlights Kicked Over in Excitement, and Structure Is Soon a Seething Mass of Flames--Awful Disaster in Boyerstown, Pa.

BOYERTOWN, Pa., Jan. 13.—Nearly one hundred persons of this borough were killed in a theater fire and panic tonight and nearly three score injured, many of them fatally. A majority of the killed were members of the leading families of the town.

While "The Scottish Reformation" was being produced in Rhoades' opera house by Mrs. Monroe of Washington, a tank used in a moving picture scene exploded. Immediately there was a wild rush for the exits of the building. Men of mature years endeavored to still the panic, but their voices could not be heard above the shrieks and screams of the terrified women and children, who composed the greater part of the audience. It seemed as though nearly the entire audience made a rush for the exits the moment the explosion occurred.

Lamps Overturned.

In their attempt to quiet the great crowd, those persons who were on the stage knocked over the coal-oil lamps used as footlights. The burning oil scattered in all directions and the lamps, which were used to light the gas in the tank, exploded, throwing the blazing oil over the terror-stricken people who were fighting frantically to gain the exits. In the mad rush a section of the floor gave way, precipitating scores of persons to the basement.

It was scarcely five minutes from the time of the explosion of the tank until the entire heart of the structure seemed a roaring furnace. There was a mad scramble for the stairway leading from the balcony and scores of women and children were knocked down and trampled upon, many of them doubtless being crushed to death. At least 50 persons, realizing that exit by the stairway meant almost certain death, risked their lives by jumping from the windows. Limbs were broken and skulls were crushed by this daring method of escape.

Doorways Blocked.

In the meantime a relief corps was at work at the entrance of the theater, endeavoring to release those who were wedged in the doorway unable to extricate themselves. Many persons who otherwise might have made good their escape from the furnace were held in check by the awful jam at the doors. As the flames cut their way toward the front of the building women could be seen to clasp their hands and fall back into the flames. Once the doors were cleared the rescuers dragged many women and children from the stairways leading to the balcony. Some of them were so badly injured that they died before reaching a temporary hospital. Skulls were crushed and the faces of some of the victims were barely recognisable. In one instance the skull of a child, apparently about 10 years old, was crushed to a jelly.

Assistance was at once asked of both Reading and Pottstown, and special trains carrying nurses and doctors were rushed to the scene of the disaster. Every home within a radius of half a dozen blocks of the opera house was made a temporary hospital, where the wounded were rushed by carriages and other means of conveyance.

Parents Overjoyed.

Boyertown is a borough with a population of about 2,500, and is located about midway between Pottstown and Reading. The fire is not yet under control, but it is not thought that it will be communicated to other property as the opera house is on a lot of ground by itself. Hundreds of persons surrounded the burning structure, apparently unconscious of the pending danger from falling walls. Many parents who had children in the house are pacing to and fro almost maddened by the awful sight.

The night was one of waiting and anguish. The relatives of those who had rushed to the theater when they learned of the fire were joined by hundreds of others who had heard of the disaster. As the night wore on the anxious throng increasing the build [illegible] to such proportions that it was almost impossible for the police force, which had been augmented by a score of men from Pottstown and Reading, to keep the people back. [illegible] from throwing herself into the burning flames.

At 2 o'clock a special train from Reading, bearing physicians and nurses, reached here, but there was little for them to do, as the injured who had dashed themselves to the pavement had been cared for by the local physicians, assisted by the Pottstown relief corps. A few minutes after midnight the rear [illegible] flames broke out anew, and those who had vainly hoped to be able to find the remains of some of their loved ones turned in despair from the scene of the awful catastrophe.

Many Injured Will Die.

It is estimated that at least 75 persons were injured by being trampled upon either on the stairway or by jumping from the windows of the burning structure. Of this number, at least a score were fatally injured, a half dozen having succumbed already to their injuries after being hurried to one of the temporary hospitals.

Three children, ranging in ages from 8 to 12 years, and one woman, who were dragged from the building by persons who had rushed to the rescue, had been trampled almost to a pulp. The skull of one of the unfortunate children had been crushed as though by a clubbing shell.

The fire was under control shortly before 1 o'clock, but it will be absolutely impossible to attempt to make a search of the ruins before tomorrow. It is extremely doubtful if the remains of the victims can be distinguished from the debris, as many persons in the audience were covered with burning oil as the lamps exploded.

SENATE TAKES UP BOND ISSUE

CORTELYOU'S ACTION IS DISCUSSED AT LENGTH.

BAILEY CHARGES FAVORITISM

BANKS GIVEN BONDS, INDIVIDUALS REFUSED.

STRINGENCY WAS PROFITABLE

Correspondence Submitted by Tillman Casts Reflection on Secretary of Treasury—Response of Cortelyou Is Now Awaited by Upper House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The recent issue of bonds by the secretary of the treasury for the purpose of relieving the financial stringency was the subject of an animated debate in the Senate today. The discussion was precipitated by an inquiry by Senator Culberson and was participated in by Senators Aldrich, Tillman and Bailey. It resulted in an agreement to postpone further controversy until a statement can be received from Secretary Cortelyou.

While the subject was under discussion, Mr. Tillman's resolution directing the finance committee to inquire into the operations of the treasury department, was referred, with his consent, to that committee.

Mr. Clay of Georgia asked whether the secretary would be required to make a report of these facts by law. [illegible] was so required, but there was no provision of law stipulating how the report should be made.

Mr. Culberson insisted that the duty of the secretary, under the law, was to make such a statement on or before January 1 for the preceding year, concerning deposits of public money. He said he had not seen any such statement.

Lays Letter Before Senate.

Mr. Tillman, referring to two resolutions by him which had remained on the calendar since December 2, called for information concerning clearing house certificates and the bond issues and said he thought it would be best to let them go to the committee on finance without attempting to pass them without reference to that committee. He said he wished to lay some correspondence on this subject before the committee and had read from the vice president's desk a letter from George H. Kloebers of Wilmington, Del., stating that he had bid an average of 104½ for $10,000 of Panama bonds and had not been awarded any of them, although they had sold for 102½.

Mr. Tillman wanted to know how it happened that the bonds had been sold to the banks at a larger price and denied to citizens who bid higher for them. He also read a letter from Assistant Secretary J. H. Edwards of the treasury department to Mr. Kloebers as follows:

"In reply to your inquiry of the 17th you are informed that individual bidders, whose bids were greater than $1,000, were not allowed any bonds."

He also read another letter from a correspondent in Augusta, Ga., who wanted to know how it had happened that the secretary places "vast currency in New York banks" to relieve the financial stringency while these banks charge 1¼ per cent premium on this money to sound banks.

Stringency Source of Profit.

"Stringency seems to be a source of profit to some one," Mr. Tillman's correspondent added.

Mr. Bailey of Texas wanted to know whether Mr. Tillman's Delaware correspondent was the man who had instituted a suit against the secretary of the treasury in the matter of the award of these bonds.

Mr. Tillman did not know whether the injunction suit had been brought by his correspondent.

"As some courts have been so glad to issue injunctions," said Mr. Bailey, "I think they would be glad of an opportunity in this case. I think this course on the part of the secretary all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the very purpose of issuing these bonds was to attract the money that was in hiding. You might attract it from places where citizens had it, but not from the banks. A part of the understanding under which these bonds were issued was that 90 per cent of the money received from their sale would be left on deposit with the banks. If that be true, the banks received from the government interest at the low rate of 30 per cent per annum."

Continuing, Mr. Bailey added:

Banks Get High Interest.

"The government sold these bonds at 104¼ and deposited in the banks 90 per cent of the purchase price, so that the 10 paid on each bond actually drew interest at the rate of 30 per cent per annum. It was not intended that this money should be used for the Panama canal, but it was to relieve the financial pressure. Under that plan, with that profit on his lips, the secretary seems to have declined the money which individual citizens were willing to take from their vaults or other places of hiding and turned the funds over to the banks at 30 per cent per annum.

Mr. Tillman remarked that he would wait for the secretary's reply. Mr. Bailey [illegible]

NEW EVIDENCE FORTHCOMING

LITTLETON SPRINGS SURPRISE AT THAW TRIAL.

INSANITY BASE OF DEFENSE

NURSES WILL TESTIFY TO DEFENDANT'S CONDITION.

Proposes to Fight Admission of Dramatic Story of Young Mrs. Thaw Justice Upholds His Objection When White Is Mentioned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The Thaw trial moved with a rush today. After the state had presented Allison Gray and Resistance Director Attorney Garvan had characterized the killing of Stanford White as "premeditated, deliberate and unjustifiable murder," Martin W. Littleton, for the defense, made the opening plea for the prisoner. His promise of new evidence was sensational and held the keenest attention of all in the court room. Jerome, seemingly taken by surprise, seated himself in the witness chair, the better to hear the outline of the new defense.

Mr. Littleton promised to forge a chain of circumstances and to produce a line of testimony which will prove Harry K. Thaw undeniable insane at the time of the homicide. Evidence of hereditary insanity and of strange acts during the Thaw trial was joined by Littleton, who said that physicians and nurses, who attended Thaw, were hurrying here from Europe; that the teachers of the defendant in childhood would be on hand to give their impressions of "the wild-eyed, distrait boy."

At the conclusion Mr. Littleton challenged the district attorney to produce a single reputable physician who would say that Thaw knew right from wrong at the time he killed White.

Both Sides Spring Surprises.

Littleton's speech fairly bristled with surprises. He startled the court room by declaring that after Evelyn Nesbit had told him her story in Paris in 1903, Thaw "drenched himself with poison," and would have died but for heroic work of three persons, who labored over him all night.

Jerome had his surprise to offer, too, and when Mr. Littleton started to launch into the relations of Stanford White with the girl, whom Thaw married, the district attorney was on his feet with an objection. As two Dowling sustained him and the name of the architect was not linked again with that of the defendant's wife. Mr. Littleton touched but slightly upon the girl's story as she told it to them, but careful as he was on this point, he again drew objection from the prosecuting officer, who said:

"Mr. Littleton is now straying into a field of stuff, which, in my opinion, will be excluded."

Jerome Shows His Hand.

Again Justice Dowling sustained the objection. It was reported at the beginning of the trial that Jerome would fight this year to exclude the testimony of young Mrs. Thaw.

Mr. Littleton spared neither Thaw nor his family in his recital of the defendant's life history. During the speech Thaw sat with wide eyes and pallid, looking fixedly at his counsel. Toward the close, he seemed rather displeased at something that was said and hastily wrote a note. Mr. Littleton's speech was somewhat dramatic and impressive at times and was followed by the jury despite the frequent objections from the state attorney to the flights of dramatic [illegible] in opening statement of fact.

Thaw's ancestry, marked by decided taints of insanity, on both the father's and mother's side, according to his chief counsel, was drawn with great care and the defendant himself was pictured as irrational, erratic and insane as a boy, who, oscillating between sanity and madness, between brilliance and darkness, fought unavailingly against the fever of insanity which coursed in his blood at birth.

"I make no claims for this defendant, above those of the average man as to morals or virtues," declared Mr. Littleton, "but I say his life history is enough to free him from the charge that he was responsible for his act. Add to his history the heartrending episode of his love for the young woman who became his wife, and of her recital to him of a story, which, flashed to the four quarters of the globe, made all the world that reads wonder and shudder, and I shall have no hesitancy in asking you if you have not a reasonable doubt as to whether he was sane the night of this [illegible] tragedy. And upon that I will ask you for a verdict of not guilty."

Mr. Littleton told of a trip around the world in 1903, which he was [illegible] at Rome, Monte Carlo [illegible] being under the care of [illegible] and nurses at all places. [illegible] as far as [illegible] at Aix. [illegible] him, had been on fire by the stories he had heard—He had gone to the district attorney with them and to Mr. Carnegie. They (?) in his head until [illegible] among the chairs of Madison Square Garden—yet not drunk—his eyes, burning like two great coals of fire, unable intelligently to answer questions, put to him, manifest in the last degree, [illegible] as he was in [illegible] in Tandy's [illegible] blind confidence [illegible] overcome him and he fired. The result was not a murder, but the act of a madman who afterward, wild-eyed and irrational, cried out by his act that he heard the voices of his maddened soldier and proclaimed that he had [illegible] an agent of Providence.

After the speech Mr. Littleton was [illegible] that he would call [illegible] Thaw. Thaw came at the recent time, it is offered such an overwhelming of evidence as to prove his insanity up to the time of the killing.

"I can only say that I will cross a bridge when I come to it," he said. "I am [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] time," he added.

The exhibit of the defense was practically finished in the afternoon session, the purpose of Thaw's attorneys to prove his insanity in 1906, regarded as of all consequence. The last evidence for the defense probably of a medical character, will be taken [illegible] morning.

James C. Smith, brother-in-law of Stanford White, the witness of the shooting which caused the architect's death, told his story to the jury. It was the same in substance as that recited at the former trial.

As there have been few large buildings, the greater part has been in residences, and shows that Colorado Springs is even now, [illegible] maintaining its position as a city of homes. There were also

PARTY DRAWS CLOSER TO SUPPORT OF GOVERNMENT.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE NOW QUIET

No Further Demonstrations Are Expected--Views of Those in Authority Expressed Through a Friend of Prime Minister Von Buelow.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—The Associated Press is enabled, by the courtesy of a personage who is in close relations with Prime Minister Von Buelow, to set forth the views of the government concerning the street demonstrations of last Friday and yesterday, which resulted from the deadlock in the Prussian landtag for the abolition of the present plutocratic system of suffrage and the substitution therefor of manhood suffrage.

"The Socialist disturbances will result in the Liberals drawing closer to the support of the government," this official said. "The Liberals in Germany are composed largely of manufacturers, bankers, merchants and other property owning interests. These interests perceive that if they are to [illegible] they must stand together for a strong government. Prince Von Buelow's declaration was no more than a simple truth. The government will consent to no electorate changes, which include the power of the Socialists to agitate against the existing organization of society and all political parties, excepting the Socialists, will make common cause with it."

Manifestants Were Rowdies.

"Both sides are disposed to minimize the character of the demonstrations of yesterday and each affirms that the disturbances were confined to certain rowdies who made use of this opportunity to endeavor to create mischief.

"Herr Von Borries, the chief commissioner of police, says the demonstration was carefully planned and that the police took decisive action only when they knew that the Socialists were determined upon unlawful public demonstrations. The Socialists quite agree that the demonstrations were prepared in advance, but they declare that they would have passed off in an orderly manner if the police had not brutally charged inoffensive parades. Detached observers regard the events of the last four days as embittering the masses and as making the government more determined than ever to keep the franchise on a limited basis. Nothing further is expected to happen in the immediate future except that the Socialists, seeking a fresh weapon, probably will stir up the passions of those who believe themselves to be denied adequate representation.

Quiet Restored.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—There were few signs to be noticed this morning of the violent scenes of yesterday, when the demonstrations for a general suffrage in Prussia resulted in a series of encounters with the police, exerting a certain effervescence in the districts of the city where the working classes live.

A GOOD MAN HONORED

words: "Not yet at the meridian of his days, a soldier and man of ability, a thoughtful and conscientious student of law, possessing a laudable and just ambition to succeed, his friends believe that he would have attained still greater eminence in his profession."

Judge Horace G. Lunt said: "A man of noble instincts, he always felt that God was just and worked all things for the good of all. With that spirit he did his work, and whenever interrupted by illness he came back and strove to do what was right. He succeeded. He left an example for all to follow, to strive, earnestly, fearlessly, justly and honorably for the highest in life."

Man of Sterling Character.

"Tried by any test, Walter Scott exhibited all requirements for honorable membership in his profession," said George M. Irwin. "To legal learning he added sterling integrity of character. His moral and mental integrity made it difficult for him to present an unsound proposition or an unconvincing argument. He knew that bench and bar alike are concerned with the administration of justice."

O. B. Willcox said: "The things I want to remember about Walter Scott are his want of affectation and his courage. He did not affect high principles or standards, but took them as a matter of course in his daily life. His courage was unusual. He was led after due deliberation, and decision to take his course, and then to it without fear of criticism from any of his friends. It was not foolhardy courage or fanaticism, but a just and deliberate courage. As we think of Walter Scott's really sterling qualities he impressed himself upon his friends and the community as in no sense a spectacular man."

S. H. Kinsley read letters from Mrs. D. V. Donaldson to the El Paso county bar association; from the Rev. James B. Gregg to Mr. Scott's mother, and from William H. Kingsley to D. V. Donaldson. Closing remarks were made by Dunbar F. Carpenter and Judge J. W. Shafer, the former speaking of Mr. Scott as a sportsman, and the latter telling of relations with him as a lawyer. The resolutions of Attorney R. L. Holland and W. P. Kinney were made in writing.

The memorial was as follows:

Memorial From Bar.

The assembled bar of El Paso county pauses this minute for reverent [illegible] on the record of the court.

Walter Scott was born April 16, 1856, in Huntingdon, Pa., was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1878, studied and practiced law with his brother, William Scott, in Pittsburg, Pa., removed to Colorado Springs in 1887 and was an active member of this bar until his death, October 24, 1907.

The Scotch-Irish Presbyterian stock from which he sprang, transplanted to Pennsylvania in colonial days, grew with the growth of that state, and is an inseparable part of its history.

Had Military Ancestry.

John Scott, first of the line in this country, settled on what was afterward the battlefield of Gettysburg, and was sheriff of York county in 1751. Another ancestor, William McCreary, was with Washington and Braddock when Braddock fell.

David, son of John, bore arms in the Revolutionary war, as did an ancestor on the maternal line. John Scott, son of David, was a major in the war of 1812, and represented his district in the Pennsylvania legislature and in Congress.

John Scott, his son, and father of Walter, was senator of the United States from Pennsylvania, and a second cousin of Colonel Thomas A. Scott, president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Senator Scott was general solicitor for 18 years of the Pennsylvania railroad, and one of the first lawyers of his time. Three of his sons divided his role among them. The elder, William, died less than two years ago, at the head of the Pittsburg bar; another, John, still practices in Philadelphia; the younger, Walter, has but now left us.

A Lawyer by Distinction.

It is small wonder that, with such heritage, tradition and environment, Walter Scott brought to the practice of our profession a trained and apt intelligence. He was a lawyer born and bred. Not a "case lawyer," although he [illegible] surprising memory for cases, he [illegible] well versed in the principles of law—a lawyer by distinction. The same happy coordination of powers and faculties which made him, although slight of frame, one of the best cricketers of America, and an adept in all manly sports, made him also an alert and resourceful advocate, a safe counselor and an efficient man of affairs. In his work, he was swift and sure. He had a genius for accomplishment and an almost instinctive orientation of the mind which kept him on his course as though guided by compass, as well as chart. Rarely did any severe illness weighted his spirit and delayed the recognition which we believe would have come to him as a leader of the bar of his adopted state.

Was Public Spirited.

His unrequited labors for others and for the welfare of this community can not here be enumerated. They will not be forgotten.

To the practice of his profession as to his social and civic relations, he brought integrity, mental as well as moral, honor, a passion for righteousness, clean life, clean thought, clean speech, an exquisite courtesy, a tranquil courage, a warm and loyal heart. Character, rooted far back in that succession of godly homes through which he drew his life, stamped the lawyer, the citizen, the friend, the man. That character has passed with him into another life. The memory remains with us, and, as was said of his brother William Scott, by the brethren of his bar, "In honoring his memory, we honor ourselves." To each of us who knew and loved him there come from his dying bed with the persuasive force of his living example, these parting words of another Walter Scott:

"Be a good man—be virtuous—be religious—be a good man.
Nothing else will give you any comfort when you come to lie here."

Martin Amador Smokes Cigarette on Scaffold—Brutally Murdered Sweetheart.

DEMING, Jan. 13.—Martin Amador was hanged in the county jail here today for the murder of his sweetheart. He went to his final whipping at the least evidence of fear, smoking a cigarette until the sheriff was ready to adjust the black cap.

Magdaleno Sabolloz, who was to have been hanged at the same time as Amador, for killing a child in an attempt to shoot the man he thought had won his common law wife, had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

MAY HAVE TO WALK HOME

Spring's Boys Start Out to See World but Are Arrested in Denver "Broke."

With not a penny in their pocket and nothing for streets because they had no place to sleep, Ned Hill, age 14 years, of 105 Pike avenue, and Will Hays, 16 years old, of 510 North Wilcox street, both of Colorado Springs, were taken into custody by the Denver police Sunday night and placed in the juvenile quarters in the city jail. Hays declares that he started on the trip with the intention of reaching Pierce, Colo., before his father does and Hill informed the police that he did not like to go to school.

The boys started out together from Colorado Springs on a freight train. Hays had enough to pay his way, while Hill had to "hit the bumpers." Both boys are satisfied that traveling without funds is a pretty hard experience. Hays wants to go on to Pierce to see his father but Hill avows his intention of going to school when he gets back to Colorado Springs.

"UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES"

Old-Time Play Makes Annual Visit to Springs.

"Under Southern Skies," a vaudeville piece in the famous "Way Down East," made its annual visit to this city last evening and played to a full house. As a play, "Under Southern Skies" does not rank very high for its action is slow and its plot improbable. The most interesting part of the entire play is the Halloween scene and the Virginia Reunion, in which is by the girls. Its characters show no great sign of character development, but rather appear as if taken from the stock house of characters used in melodrama.

The cast of the play was only average. The best work of the evening was done by Brownie DeMont in the role of Anner Lizer. Edna Bonald as Lolly, the heroine, made up in earnestness what she lacked in histrionic ability. George M. Koehler as Steve was rather wooden and had none of the characteristics one would imagine this villain would have. The other parts were filled better than the principal parts. Alice Duprey as Miss Alsley made a pretty piece of work out of this small part, as did Miss Bessie Burnes as Fifi Hampton. Annie Mortimer as Aunt Dosie gave a fairly faithful portrayal of the negro mammy. The rest of the cast was adequate. The staging was fair.

Whatever may be the critical verdict of "Under Southern Skies," the public long ago put its stamp of approval on this piece and will continue to patronize it until it ceases to come out yearly.

SPRINGS MAN INJURED—As the result of the amputation of his left hand several days ago, George Hughes, son of Thomas Hughes, of 122 North Weber street, is in a critical condition in Ogden, Utah. While repairing machinery in a canning plant in which he is employed, Hughes fell from a ladder several weeks ago and severely crushed his hand, amputation of several fingers being necessary.

CLIMATE INDUCES LONGEVITY

Vital Statistics for December Show Many Octogenarians on the Death Roll.

Colorado Springs claims to be a premier health resort. On the Atlantic coast, here perhaps never been better exemplified than in the death records for the month of December, compiled by City Clerk E. P. Whitaker. These present striking the fact that Coloradoans live to a ripe old age.

Of the 61 deaths recorded during the 19 days following December 1, 22 were men or women who had passed the 55-year mark; of these 19 were 65 years of age or older. 14 had reached the three score and ten mark, and eight were octogenarians. The four oldest ages recorded were 84, 85, 87 and 88. This showing is considered remarkable, and when it is taken into consideration that a goodly proportion of the deaths under the 55-year mark were cases of imported tuberculosis, the longevity of Colorado climate is still more clearly demonstrated.

In the list of those who had passed the 55-year mark, were a large number who had spent a large or greater part of their lives in this region. There are recorded some among this number who came to Colorado many years ago for the benefit of their health, which they speedily recovered, and used to claim for many more years the benefits bestowed by Colorado Springs' climate.

FOSS GETS CHANGE OF VENUE

Preliminary Hearing Will Be Held Before Justice Ruby on Thursday Morning.

Transferring the hearing in Justice W. N. Ruby's court on a change of venue, the case of Noble Foss, charged with taking indecent liberties with children, was yesterday continued until 9 o'clock Thursday morning. The change of venue was granted on motion of the attorneys for the defense, who later requested that the trial in Justice Ruby's court be delayed until next week.

District Attorney Hamlin, conducting the prosecution, requested that the hearing be held immediately, but Justice Ruby declared that he was too ill to hear the case, and that stress of business would delay it until Thursday morning. Assisting the district attorney in representing the state is Deputy District Attorney C. E. Collins, while counsel for the defense are Franklin E. Brooks, Judge H. C. Lunt and Bigelow A. Orr.

Justice Dunnington declared that he was not prejudiced in the case and that he had paid no attention to it until it came before him.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Former Justice Charles Walker, 83 Years Old, Knocked Down by Automobile.

While passing Strang's automobile garage on North Cascade avenue Saturday, Charles Walker, former justice of the peace and one of the oldest residents of this city, was knocked down and severely injured by an automobile which was backing out of the garage. But it has been for the presence of some passersby who should have warned the driver of the car the wheels would have passed over the prostrate man with probably fatal results. As it was, Mr. Walker, who is 83 years of age and very feeble, was knocked to the sidewalk and suffered severe cuts and contusions about the body and face.

Mr. Walker, who lives with his son-in-law, D. E. Monroe, at 512 North Weber street, is very much incensed over what he claims was the negligence of the driver and in relating the accident yesterday styled the place as a "new death trap" and added: "Unless some thing is done to put a stop to such careless work we will hear of a death being caused in just such a fashion. If there is no ordinance regulating such matters, the city council should enact one."

AN INSIDIOUS DANGER

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. All dealers.

PELTA'S MILL REMNANT SALE A BIG SUCCESS

Pelta's ninth annual mill remnant sale began yesterday with a rush. All day long this popular store was packed to the doors with delighted customers, and so great was the rush that many people were turned away in spite of the fact that extra salespeople were put on in every department, and everything possible done to handle the crowds. It was the biggest day Pelta's have ever enjoyed at any previous mill remnant sale.

The sale this year is bigger and better than ever, and covers every department from millinery to the basement. It represents thousands of dollars worth of table linens, muslins, India linens, outing flannels, flannelettes, all kinds of domestic staples; also silks, embroideries, dress goods, laces, corsets, gloves and many small wares, such as buttons, combs, etc. These goods were bought from the eastern mills at a fraction of their values during the artificial panic, when the manufacturers were compelled to have cash, and they are now on sale at from 25 to 50 per cent less than their actual value.

As the bargains are picked up new goods will be placed on sale each day until the sale closes. Now is your time to make a money saving purchase on articles you need every day.

LOUISE ENGEL MARRIES

FORMER SPRINGS GIRL WEDS IN SPOKANE.

Tries Second Venture in Matrimony as Bride of Lieut. Scher of Fort Wright.

Miss Isabelle Louise Engel, daughter of Frederick Engel of this city, who recently went through the divorce mill in Denver, has embarked once more on the matrimonial sea, this time in company with Lieutenant Bruno T. Scher of Fort Wright, Wash., to whom she was married in Spokane, Wash., on the afternoon of [illegible] The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's cousin, Captain Bonford, who gave the bride away, the officiating clergyman being Lieut. Herbert A. Smith, chaplain of the Third infantry regiment. Miss Lisle Dunning was the bridesmaid.

The happy couple have gone on a wedding trip across the Philippines. Lieut. Scher will be stationed with the Eighteenth infantry. The groom has been in the army service for 10 years and has an enviable record as a veteran of the Spanish-American war in the Philippines and has also seen considerable post service in Alaska. For the last 18 months he has been with the Third Infantry at Fort Wright where he met his bride about three months ago. It was a case of love at first sight and the arrangements for the wedding were made with military dispatch.

Mrs. Scher is well known in this city and in Denver and has a large number of friends in both cities. Her marriage to F. W. Roebel of Milwaukee and subsequent divorce about a year ago created quite a sensation among the yellow journals at the time. Mrs. Scher spent a part of last summer at the Antlers hotel in this city.

LOVE WINS IN BATTLE

NURSE WEDS MAN WHOSE LIFE SHE SAVED.

Romance Originating in Deaconess Hospital Culminates in Marriage of Well-Known Couple.

A romance that had its beginning in the Deaconess hospital last winter when, after his physicians had given him up to die, Charles Farris of Colorado City was nursed back to life by Miss Lena V. Anderson, one of the nurses in the institution, culminated Sunday night in a wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson, [illegible] Nevada avenue. The Rev. Arthur W. Among those who witnessed the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bundy, Mr. and Mrs. A. [illegible] Buck, Mr. and Mrs. M. Younger, Miss Mary E. Robertson, Miss Ruth Schiffer, Clyde Bundy, F. M. Warth, Alex Buck and William J. Farris.

COMIC OPERA AT TIMBERLINE

Frank Daniels Amuses Snowbound Passengers in Ivanhoe Tunnel.

While wintry winds were raging over the crest of the continent, Frank Daniels, Miss Julia Brewer and company, snowbound for six hours on the Colorado Midland between Leadville and Grand Junction, whiled away the weary hours and afforded diversion for a hundred or more passengers by giving an extemporaneous rendering of "The Tattooed Man" in the Busk-Ivanhoe tunnel, 11,000 feet above sea level. After the company had arranged a stage in the tunnel and the passengers were seated on the track or remained standing against the walls, the electric headlight of the locomotive was hung over the entrance and its rays so diffused that every member of the cast was in the spot light for the time being.

Before the performance General Agent Drew of the Midland went through the train and announced that "The Tattooed Man" would be presented for the entertainment of the passengers. His remarks elicted appreciative applause from the passengers. Not a detail of the performance was omitted, and if anything the unique scenic setting enhanced the effect of the presentation.

ANNUAL MEETING AT ANTLERS

Chamber of Commerce to Elect Officers and Make Reports on Year's Work.

Reports to be presented by Secretary Henry Russell Wray at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tonight at the Antlers hotel will show that the year 1907 was one of the best tourist season in the history of Colorado Springs, both as to the number visiting this city and from a point of revenue. During the last year a number of important industries have located here through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce.

Although C. L. Hemming, cashier of the El Paso National bank, is seriously ill of typhoid fever at his home, his report as treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce has been prepared and will be submitted tonight.

Five directors are to be elected for the ensuing year. The nominating committee comprises Mayor D. N. Heizer, R. W. Chisholm and F. D. Pastorius.

WILL SHIP ITS ENTIRE DUMP

Anchoria-Leland to Realize Neat Sum From Thousands of Tons of Discarded Rock.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 13.—It is reported, on good authority, that the Anchoria-Leland Gold Mining company, owning valuable acreage on the northwest slope of Gold hill, proposes shortly to start to ship the entire dump, which contains thousands and thousands of tons of rock. In the early days, the Anchoria-Leland produced some exceptionally fine ore, and at that time ore that can now be treated at a profit was hurled over the dump. The rock can be easily treated, because it has been allowed to lie on the dump so long that it has become, by contact with air and rain and snow, partially oxidized.

It is believed that the dump will average better than $10 in gold to the ton, although a couple of years ago some 4,000 tons of this dump rock was shipped and it only gave values of from $6 to $8. The Anchoria-Leland management, it is stated, is now figuring on running in a railroad spur to the dump, and will ship it out with very little if any sorting.

LEASES ETHEL LOUISE

WESTERN INVESTMENT CO. SECURES MORE PROPERTY.

May Also Take Grandeau and Bonanza King, Adjoining Other Gold Hill Claims.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 13.—The Western Investment company, the largest operating leasing company in the Cripple Creek district, working on some dozen different leasing properties most successfully, has taken a three-year lease on the Ethel Louise on the west slope of Gold hill. It is stated that negotiations are now pending for the Western Investment company securing leases on the Grandeau and Bonanza King properties adjoining.

There has been a large quantity of ore shipped from these properties in the past, the total amount probably aggregating considerably more than a million dollars. This portion of Gold hill is a perfect network of veins, and with consistent and diligent development and prospect work, it is believed that numerous good bodies of ore will again be found. There are good shafts and tunnels in these properties, splendid ore and shaft houses with capable machinery and compressors, so that work can be started at once.

The Western Investment company, which has been netting between $80,000 and $15,000 annually on the different leases worked, will begin operations on the Ethel Louise Monday morning with a full force of men.

MAY LEASE WIDE AWAKE

Clarence Sheafor Is Given Ten-Day Prospecting Privilege.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 13.—The Wide Awake Gold Mining company, owning the Wide Awake claim, consisting of five acres in a splendid neighborhood on Raven hill as well as other good property, among it being the Irish Molly on Gold hill, has given a ten-day prospecting privilege to Clarence Sheafor, son of District Judge John W. Sheafor of Colorado Springs. This privilege carries with it the right to have a lease for a period of two years, with graded royalties.

Mr. Sheafor will start Monday to prospect and take samples in this property on Raven hill, and the indications are that a lease will be taken. The Wide Awake claim lies in such close proximity to [illegible] producing, that it is the opinion that some one or more of the veins now giving up ore will be found to traverse this claim.

MOTHER HUBBARD OUTDONE

From the New York World.

Former Corporation Counsel William B. Ellison was looking out of the dining room window at the Barclay street side of the Astor house when he saw a wandering dog looking pitifully up at the window.

"Look at that, Mike," remarked Mr. Ellison to his companion, Water Registrar Michael Clarence Padden, "Big Timber" military secretary. "It's a shame to see that poor animal looking so hungry at us while we're eating of the fat of the land."

As he spoke Mr. Ellison cut off the bone of a steak on his table. Wrapping it in a napkin, he made his way to the sidewalk and placed the bone where the dog could see it.

Returning to the dining room, Mr. Ellison looked out of the window and beamed with satisfaction when he saw how pleased the dog was with the bone.

"It was a kind thing," said Joseph F. Ahearn, president of the Telegraphers, who witnessed the incident. "That man has a warm spot in his makeup."

"I'll make a new man of you," exclaimed the doctor, hopefully. "Not on your life," replied the patient; "my wife prides herself on being a new woman, and that's enough in one family."

VERY FIRST SIGN

OF SERIOUS KIDNEY TROUBLE IS IN THE BACK.

Gives Prescription Which Anyone Can Prepare to Overcome Kidney Trouble.

Very few of backache, kidney troubles and many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here, also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the warning signal nature hangs out to warn the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strong alcoholic patent medicines, which are painful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, quite simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural function of the kidneys, so they will sift and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and cleared and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful, frequent and other urinary difficulties.

This is worth trying and may prove just what many people here need.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE

CONSIDERABLE INCURSION OF OUTSIDE ORDERS.

While Plenty of Stocks Were Offered to Meet Demand, Yet Prices Were Bid Up to Higher Point.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—[illegible] market to-day [illegible] stock market [illegible] with the rank. That this was the case was illustrated by the action of stocks today, in response to Saturday's decisive [illegible] [illegible] portion buying of stocks [illegible] development proved to have been [illegible] accomplished when operations were resumed at the stock exchange today. There was a considerable incursion of outside orders, and stocks were freely supplied to meet [illegible] prices were bid up considerably higher than Saturday's level to accommodate. Most of the new [illegible] were specialties [illegible] of the first hour of the day. That proved [illegible] the most active of the day, and there was a material lift in the aggregate of the market after [illegible]. The noticeable thing was conducted with caution and skill.

While the heavy [illegible] to the bank reserve [illegible] by the bank statement was accepted as [illegible] again [illegible] further damage from [illegible] shortage for lending purposes, there was added considerably today to the importance as an index to stringency in the money market the employment of money to this [illegible]. The heavy decrease in the country's bank clearings gave evidence in the same direction. Another feature of the incident is the large offerings of national bank notes for current redemption at the United States treasury which marks the beginning of the automatic tendency to contraction of the bank circulation. Railroad traffic [illegible] corroborative evidence of the slackening of the business [illegible] timony to the [illegible] slackening in freight movement. The [illegible] in addition to the revelations of actual earnings of some railroads had the effect of renewed weakness of bond issues of several companies which have been [illegible] of unfavorable rumors [illegible] past. The recession in traffic [illegible] so severe as to bring into question [illegible] in some circles the advisability of [illegible] charges. The selling to take profit was [illegible] from all the last week's [illegible] and United States Steel [illegible] cattle in stocks.

Bonds were irregular. [illegible] United States [illegible] declined ½ per cent on call [illegible] per ¼ per cent on call.

Every Dog Has His Day

Did you ever stop to consider how often the changes in the fortunes of a family mean the changes in the conditions of a dog's life?

Every day some family, through misfortune or for some other reason, is compelled to part with a well-bred dog.

They don't want their dog to be cast about or sold in the market. They want him to be put in a home as good as that which they were able to give him.

The first thought of such people is the classified columns of The Gazette.

If you want to buy a fine dog, where else can you learn what dogs are for sale except in the classified columns of the paper where families are advertising their dogs for sale,

Or perhaps you have lost your dog he is either a pet, a valuable dog or one you would not part with for any price. One of our little lost ads, will locate him for you, saving you time and anxiety, and at such a nominal expense.

Every day and Sunday The Gazette is the classified medium.

CLEANING AND PRESSING.

READY for the next social event, isn't it? Is your apparel spotlessly clean? Evening coat, party gown, silk or lace waist, skirt, gloves and slippers? If not, then send them here for Dry Cleaning—the only way, the easy way to appear spotlessly attired. The Pantatorium, 17 E. Bijou. Phone 523.
